WICHITA, KS -- Julie Burkhart, founder & CEO of Trust Women, issued the following statement:

“Today’s vote to confirm Amy Coney Barrett to the United States Supreme Court makes a mockery of the confirmation process and sends a message that the rights of women in America are not guaranteed. Judge Barrett has a consistent, well-known track record of limiting the rights of women, LGBTQ Americans, workers and people of color, and she will put safe, legal abortion care out of reach for a majority of Americans if given the chance. This is a sad day for our democracy, and devastating for women and families throughout our country who stand to lose the right to make their own health care decisions. Trust Women will continue to provide compassionate abortion care to our patients--no matter what--and will remain steadfast in our efforts to elect leaders who will protect Americans’ rights to their own bodily autonomy.”
